

הלכה of the Week

~ ברכות השחר ~ (The Morning Blessings, part 2)

The Rabbis commanded many different ברכות to be recited before enjoying various pleasures available in the world.

They said: “A person is forbidden to gain any enjoyment from this world without first reciting a blessing. Whoever gains enjoyment without first reciting a ברכה is like one who steals a holy object.” (Berochos 35a)

Since everything in the world belongs to ה', taking anything for our personal use without first reciting a ברכה is like stealing a holy object. However, once a person has recited a ברכה he is permitted to gain benefit from the object.
